THE MORGAN GARDNER BULKELEY HIGH SCHOOL

Preface

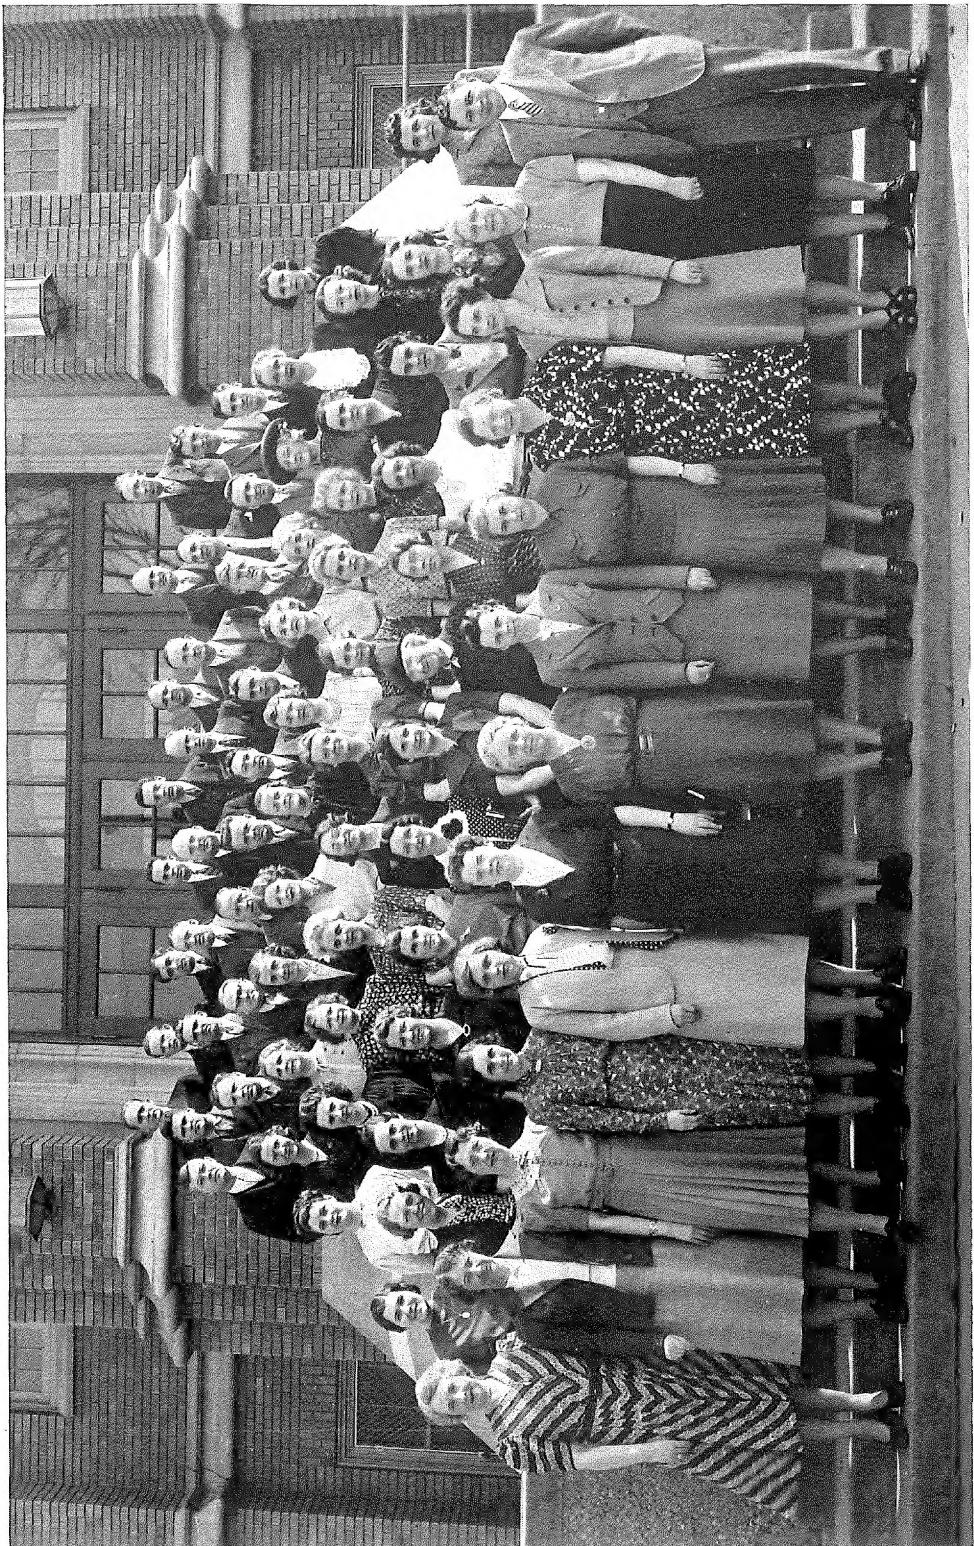

By reflecting the spirit of Bulkeley through the media of pictures and the written word, we have endeavored to make the 1939 Class Book a lasting bond between our classmates and the school they leave behind.

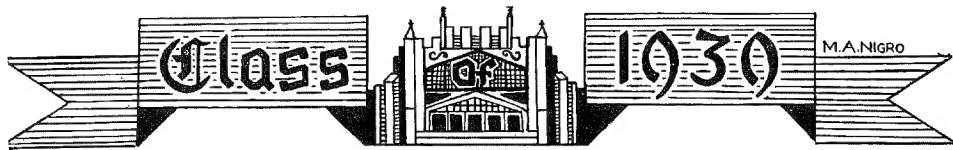

It has been our earnest desire to make this book your book in every way, and to establish a permanent record whereby our classmates and their achievements may never be forgotten. If at some future moment of reminiscence it serves to bring you pleasure by taking you back through the years to your high school days, and if it gives you enjoyment at the present moment, then we shall consider it a task well done, and our wishes will have been fulfilled to the utmost.

We wish to offer our sincere thanks to all those who have willingly given their assistance in the preparation of this volume: to Dr. Feingold for his helpful suggestions and excellent advice; to Miss Potter for her invaluable assistance; to Mr. Hart for his cheerful guidance; to Miss Safford and Miss Alma Plumb of the Art Department; to the members of the Art staff for the work displayed throughout; to John McCormack for his fine sports write-ups; to the typists, Josephine Alesi, Florence Bagshaw, Beatrice Carbone, Margery Diesel, Sappho Drakos, Avis Elliott, Dorothy George, Helen Jeffers, Mary Kennedy, Lillian Lewis, Avis Quistberg, Constance Randazzo, and Lois Wylot, for their unstinting labor; to Jeanne Yates and John Foran for their aid in preparing the material; to Eileen Nolan for her indispensable services; and to Marshall Golden and Howard Chudoba for their candid camera shots.

WILLIAM E. SMITH.

Our Principal's Message

"Youth is such a beautiful thing," sang the poet—and a young poet at that. "Youth is the hope of the world." "Youth alone can solve the problems of the future." "Youth is the mainstay of our civilization." These and similar epigrams are so often indulged in by speakers and writers that young people must sometimes grow tired of hearing them. And yet there is a world of truth in these statements, as demonstrated by what democratic society tries to do for youth.

Nature employs specific means for the preservation of the young until they are old enough to preserve themselves. In the human race, however, these natural means are supplemented by numerous social instrumentalities, not only to assure the protection of the individual in his infancy, but also to make him strong and secure when he reaches maturity.

Among these social agencies education is the most potent as far as life and happiness are concerned. During the early years education is carried on through formal instruction in school and college. In making this provision, society prolongs the period of youth—all for the purpose of facilitating the acquisition of more knowledge, more skill, and more self-confidence in preparation for the real battle of life.

Society does all this, not without increasing effort, labor and cost, but it does it gladly because its hope IS in youth and because it has faith in youth. There is only one thing the older generation asks in return, and that is that youth, individually and collectively, should have faith in itself and never lose hope in the future. Carry on! Carry on! "Youth is such a beautiful thing."

GUSTAVE A. FEINGOLD.

A. A. 1, 2, 3, 4; Boys' Club 1, 2, 3, 4. Never tardy; no demerits. Washington Street Grammar School.

If Roland's knowledge of text books had equalled his knowledge of baseball, he would have made about ninety-five in every subject. Basketball was a favorite topic of conversation with him.

JOHN CHARLES AYERS
"Squares"

"Better late than never."

When you hear one of those infectious giggles, you may be sure it is Beverly's. She can also do some good work when she sets her mind to it.

Parents, Teachers, and Friends:

It is my privilege and pleasure, as representative of my class, to bid you a most cordial welcome to our Class Night Exercises. We take this occasion to publicly express to you, our parents, teachers, and friends, our deep appreciation for the patience you have shown, and for the help and guidance you have given us.

We have chosen certain classmates to present to you an entertainment which we hope you will enjoy. It will disclose a representative array of talent—vocal, instrumental, and oratorical—and through the gift of our seers it will afford us glimpses of a more or less rosy future. Our sincere wish is that you, our guests, will enter with us into the spirit of the occasion.

Again, let me extend to you a most hearty welcome.

WILLIAM F. QUINN

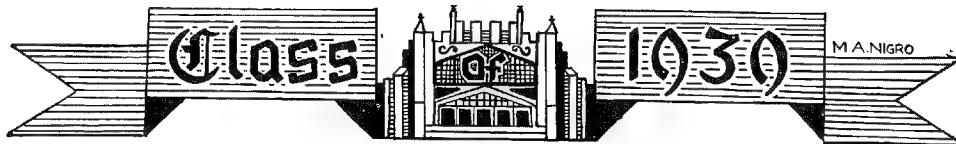

M.A.NIGRO

IS NEUTRALITY POSSIBLE ?

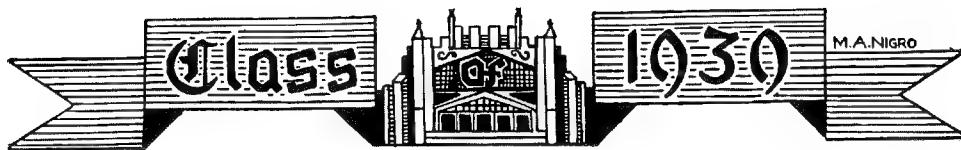

THE question of a foreign policy is a subject of paramount importance to every citizen of the United States. With thunderheads of war piling upon the European horizon, the age-old query again arises—can we remain isolated and maintain neutrality? As we gaze at the fantastic panorama of international affairs, we see the world as a maelstrom of confusion and inconsistency—a world of hate, of fear, of distrust—a world reverberating to the ominous tread of marching feet, rumbling caissons, and droning aircraft—a confusion of sound pierced by the despairing groans of bleeding China and terrorized Central Europe. It is a house divided—on one side the pressing hordes of totalitarianism, inspired by the unholy twins, Hitler and Mussolini; on the other the desperate legions of democracy commanded by a lonely figure, armed with an umbrella, and the most commanding of all motives, self-preservation. The world is a powder magazine, requiring only the slightest spark to set off an explosion which might well destroy the temple of human civilization. It is this situation that confronts the United States today—a situation which demands an answer to the question—Can we remain neutral?

In constructing an answer it would be well to inquire into the origin of this policy of neutrality and isolation. It came into being in the earliest years of our independence, under the guidance of Washington, Jefferson, and Madison. Yet even these, the authors of the plan, couldn't make it work. In 1796, only a few years after the inauguration of the isolation policy, we were fighting an undeclared commercial war with France. A few years later, under the leadership of Jefferson, we were fighting a war with the Barbary pirates, and lastly, even the isolationist Madison couldn't keep us out of the War of 1812. This record of our involvement in foreign affairs is anything but impressive, especially in view of the fact that it was made under the leadership of the most ardent of isolationists.

Let us, then, return to the twentieth century and examine our present foreign policy. Are we neutral now? Theoretically, we are; actually we are not. Our present foreign policy is one neither of isolation nor neutrality. Our extensive participation in world affairs, both of a political and economic nature, makes impossible any claim to isolation, except by those who choose to disregard the facts as they exist. These factors make isolation nothing more tangible than a dream, a product of wishful rather than clear and intelligent thinking. As for neutrality—a survey of recent front-page news will serve to destroy any illusions we may have concerning our course in foreign affairs. Government dignitaries, led by the President, have been definitely pro-democratic in opinions expressed in articles, speeches, and statements to the press. The State Department, both by word and action, has expressed its disapproval of the relentless Fascist aggression. Can the increase in the tariff on German commodities be called a sign of neutrality? Can the decision to sell military aircraft only to Great Britain and France be construed as anything but a rebuff to the dictatorial states? Can the loan of money to China give testimony of our good-will towards Japan in her attempt to absorb China? The dictators would be thick-skinned individuals indeed, if they did not realize where our support is in the present situation. Those who, in the face of this evidence of partiality, still talk of American isolation are victims of a hypocritical blindness, much like that of the proverbial ostrich. Remember, there is none so blind as he who refuses to see.

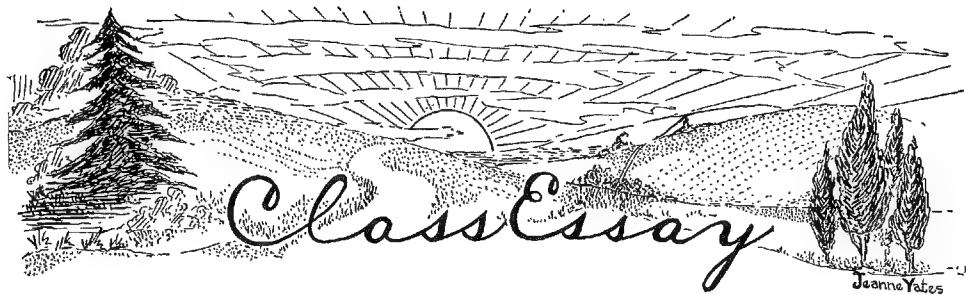

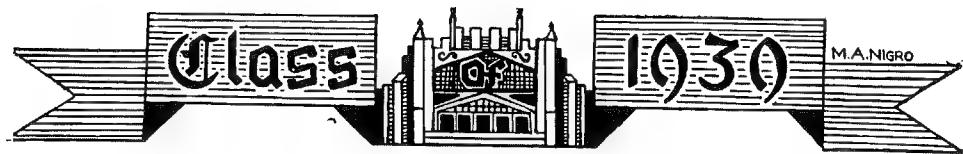

To reach the goal of strict neutrality, we must, therefore, change radically our present foreign policy. In fact, we must introduce a policy which will be utterly different from any policy of our past history. The isolationist advocates a continuance of what he chooses to call "our traditional policy of isolation." I have already shown that such a policy exists only in the imaginations of our well-meaning, but scarcely practical, idealists. Let us examine, then, the possibility of discarding our present foreign policy for one of isolated neutrality. The first factor to be considered is that of foreign trade. In order to become isolated, we must, first of all, destroy our foreign commerce completely. If such a step were taken, the howl of protest would be eloquent, indeed, and it would not be difficult to imagine our friend, the isolationist, braying lustily in the chorus. But let us assume for the sake of argument that this step can be accomplished. The next factor to be considered is our relationship with the tense state of international affairs. What would be the effect on the world, if we suddenly abandoned our pro-democratic attitude? The foundation of world peace would be shaken by an earthquake, the shock of which might well cause posterity to shudder for decades to come. All semblance to hesitancy would be thrust aside by the two European vultures seeking the carrion of a lifeless democracy. Gone would be democracy's confidence; her morale crushed and lifeless. If such a situation did materialize and European democracy were conquered by totalitarianism, the peace and security of our own democracy would be seriously threatened. We would be living in a world dominated by dictatorial policies: policies which are certainly inimicable to us and our form of government. The possibility of maintaining our cherished ideals of freedom and independence in such an atmosphere of hostility would be greatly diminished.

In conclusion, then, let us draw our inferences from the facts as they have been presented. The pages of history have shown us that a policy of so-called isolation failed to keep us out of war, even in our infancy as a nation. We have seen that a policy of isolated neutrality is neither practical nor possible. We have discovered that our present foreign policy is not neutral, as our idealistic isolationist contends, but is definitely pro-democratic, and finally we have seen that if an isolationist policy should be adopted now, it might result in our ultimate downfall as a democratic nation. Interpreting this evidence in the light of common sense, one may well ask: Is neutrality possible?

ELLIOTT BERNARD ALLEN

ON WALKING COMPANIONS

NE of the pleasantest things in the world is going a journey; but I like to go by myself. The soul of a journey is liberty, perfect liberty, to think, feel, do just as one pleases." Here I quote On Going a Journey by William Hazlitt, one of the most famous of walking enthusiasts. By "going a journey" Hazlitt means walking up beautiful hills and down picturesque dales, along dusty roads and across tiny ancient bridges, walking for a few hours until one begins to lag and then reclining beneath some spreading chestnut tree or stately elm to devour leisurely a slightly stale, but none the less delicious, sandwich. Having recovered his strength, one resumes his happy jaunt through field and wood until darkness hovers silently above him, and a hundred yards down the way he discovers a quaint and tiny establishment offering its humble accommodation to the journeyer at the end of day.

If one wishes to isolate himself from his fellows, to think on deep and earnest lines, to rearrange the inner cupboards of his mind, what pleasanter, what more effective means can he discover than going on such a tour, companionless and unimpeded by untimely chatter and troublesome association? On the other hand, if one desires true pleasure, true companionship, how can he find a more irreproachably sure way of securing it than going a journey, accompanied by some comrade who will add his bit to making the adventure a successful one?

When one suddenly decides that he needs a vacation and drops everything to take an invigorating jaunt through the countryside, it is usually because he is bored, tired of his surroundings, and, a little more than likely, rather tired of himself. The best tonic for one in this dilemma is close companionship with another. A walking tour is his best bet. Let him choose as his companion some old cronie whom he "has not seen in a dog's age," and he will be the happiest among men. Together they will discover the contentment which only Mother Nature herself can lavish, and little else on earth can bestow even in the minutest quantities.

If one has made even a fairly good choice in his selection of a companion, he will never lack an interesting topic for discourse, nor will the proper and refreshing periods of silence by wanting. It will be a fifty-fifty proposition. For every lovely setting that one discovers, or interesting observation that one makes, the other will feel that in order to maintain his self-respect he must make a contribution also. Competition will be keen, spirits high, and twice the information and twice the enjoyment will be had, since there will be two mentalities at work rather than one.

Similarly, if you have made a wise choice, you will experience none of the annoying incidents which Stevenson so ably describes in his "Walking Tours." You will not have to cut your long, swinging strides down several feet to match those of a dainty and frail maiden, nor will you have to stretch your moderate paces to keep up with a giant who seems to be wearing seven league boots. Your comrade will be neither an exasperating chatter-box nor a veritable Sphinx, but will represent that small but nevertheless very vocal group of persons who have cultivated the art of real conversation.

Hazlitt complains: "If you remark the scent of a bean-field, crossing the road, perhaps your fellow-traveler has no smell. If you point to a distant object, perhaps he is short-sighted, and has to take out his glass to look at it." Obviously, he does not covet companionship on his walking tours. However, aside from Hazlitt, Stevenson, Morley, and a few others, the general run of people such as you and I are in need of a great deal of moral support as well as a certain amount of human fellowship. The fact that your comrade doesn't see everything you see or smell everything you smell may perplex you for a time, but in the long run, the combination of ideas and discoveries of both will far outshine those of either individual.

"Traveling afoot! This is the best posture in which to worship the God of the Out-of-Doors!" says John Finley. Traveling afoot has the same beneficial effect on the mind and body regardless of whether one goes alone or with a dozen companions; nothing can change that fact.

CLASS HISTORY

Time—An April evening in 1964.

Scene—The modern living room of a career woman. The mistress of the apartment and a former school acquaintance are discussing plans for the annual reunion of the Bulkeley Class of 1939.

Leahbeth Harvey—Why, good evening, Bob. How are Mrs. O'Connor and Robert, Jr.?

Robert O'Connor—Very fine; and how are you?

L. H.—Oh, I feel extremely well, but my work keeps me so busy that I have little time for anything else. That's why it's always so nice to return to the class reunion and renew old acquaintances.

B. O'C.—Well, I guess that's the way we all feel about it. But now to get down to business. I was talking with Mrs. Snodgrass the other day; she was the former Helen Waterhouse. We thought of having our reunion right in the old gym—more atmosphere, you know.

L. H.—I think that's a splendid idea. It brings back so many memories, and as long as we're trying for atmosphere, why not have Felix Sarubbi and his "Hawaiian Swingeroos" for the dancing?

B. O'C.—Say, that is an idea! Do you remember all the A. A. dances and Boys' Club-Girls' League dances that we had in the gym, and how they were written up in The Torch?

L. H.—Speaking of The Torch, that was where we got all the information for the Class History we had to write. I remember seeing such names as Esther Berman, Harold Hahn, Isabel Steinberg, Dick Sutherland, and Kay Lynch on the Honor Roll.

It was during our freshman year that Dr. Feingold rewarded our school spirit by selecting special seats for us at the Hartford-Bulkeley football game.

One particularly outstanding assembly of the year was a talk given by Captain Stanley Osborne, Australian World War Veteran and traveler, who lectured on Africa and the development of its gold and diamond mines.

We of the fairer sex were initiated into the Girls' League at the annual Freshman Hallowe'en party in November.

Dick Monahan and Bob Murphy were the envy of the class when they were first to crash the "Mud Puddle" of The Torch.

The March flood of 1936 rocked the entire city into commotion. On account of the interruption of electrical current Bulkeley High was run on its own auxiliary power. Most of our hearty freshmen donned their Boy Scout and other assorted uniforms and donated their services to the care of those most in need of aid.

In May of our freshman year the tenth anniversary of the school's existence was celebrated.

The year was climaxed with the award of Latin prizes to two of our most outstanding members, Mary McGrail and Marion Bouchard. This distinction was all the more notable because it was a state-wide contest sponsored by the Hartford Courant.

B. O'C.—Well, our sophomore year started with a bang.

L. H.—How well I remember.

B. O'C.—Joe Morrissey made his way to a position on The Torch as a sports writer, Harold Hahn was elected president of the Junior Dramatic Club, and Henry Lundquist was admitted to the staff of The Torch Editorial Board.

The Student Council included such names as Bob Young, Robert Hale, John McCormack, Eddie Casey, Bob Cavanaugh, and Francis Sablone.

The coming of pupils from the Burr Junior High School greatly increased the class enrollment.

The athletes of our class began to make their way into the limelight. Such names as Quinn, Gallucci, D'Ambrosia, Smith, Johnson, Vicas, and Guy were on the tip of every tongue during the football season. The basketball team included such notables as Parone, Cavanaugh, Murphy, and Granato.

Among the assemblies of the year was an especially interesting one conducted by Mr. H. W. Austin on the making of pottery.

The Junior Dramatic Club gave one of its best productions, "Apple Blossom Time", starring Marshall Golden and Rita Stedman. For the first time in the history of the school a second performance was given by popular demand.

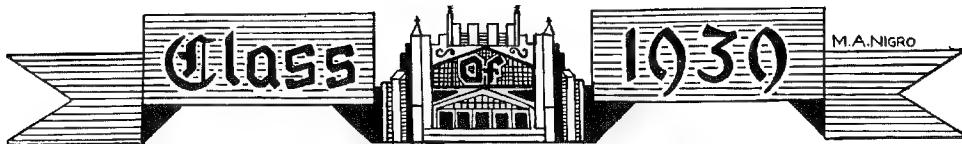

Among other things introduced to the school this year were the Verse Speaking Choir under the direction of Miss Garvin; Sports Night, a review of the various athletics; and Parents' Night, which afforded parents the opportunity to see what was accomplished in school by us child prodigies.

The track team was represented by such outstanding athletes as Quinn, and Sutherland, while Wilkos, Pappageorge, Sirianni, and Addario represented the sophomores in baseball.

L. H.—I can hardly imagine Tiny Quinn on the track team now! Our junior year was the year, though.

B. O'C.—Yes, we had lots of fun and achieved many honors and distinctions, and we didn't have to worry about graduation exercises.

L. H.—In September of the junior year we were very proud to learn, through the medium of The Torch, that our own Dr. Jane Dargan had won a place in the United States "Women's Who's Who."

This year there was considerable controversy about whether or not to have girl cheerleaders. They were tried for a while but did not prove half so successful as the band which was instituted at the same time under the capable direction of Felix Sarubbi.

Several interesting assemblies were held, among them a Liquid Air Demonstration presented by the Edison Club; "They Wanted a Girl," a cinema treat sponsored by the Student Council; and "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," another movie given by several clubs to raise money to renovate the clubroom.

Many school clubs took trips to places of interest. The Dramatic Clubs visited the Federal Theatre and learned about production technique. The Radio Club visited Avon transmitting station. The Girls' Biology Club visited Hartford Hospital and later the New York Aquarium and Planetarium.

The Senior Dramatic Club presented a comedy entitled "Nellie Was a Lady" and a hilarious mellow-drayma, "On the Bridge at Midnight."

Jean McCarthy was chosen chairman of the Junior Prom, which was very successful, being attended mainly by seniors.

Phil Moreau was outstanding in tennis, and "Tiny" Quinn added to his laurels on the gridiron. Benny Vicas was chosen captain of the football team for 1938. It was during this year that an electric scoreboard for basketball was installed in the gymnasium.

A new student from Germany entered the school, Ralph Monaghan. He achieved distinction in science and math, being elected an honorary member of the Mathematics Club.

A record was made in January, 1938, when the school had the largest Honor Roll in its history.

The Honor Society held a successful Penny Campaign to buy new books for the library. The Girls' League donated ten dollars to the band for uniforms.

The Mathematics Club was organized and Miss Neal was chosen faculty head.

Ann Postma ably represented the Junior Girls in the annual assembly debate between the Agora and the Boys' Debating Club.

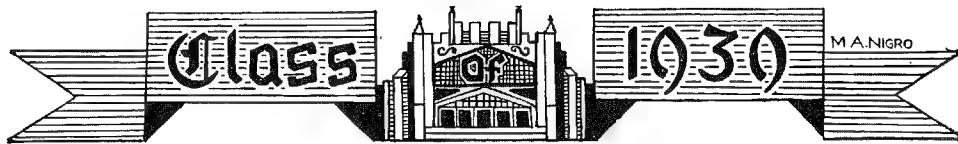

Many Bulkeleyites represented their school at the Times Exposition in such displays as sewing, office work, and art demonstrations.

The Dial and The Torch Minstrel had Aldea Brennan, Anna Butler, Jean McCarthy, Bob Cantell, Lucy Mikan, "Tiny" Quinn, and Bob Flanigan as entertainers.

B. O'C.—I'll never forget what a time Bob Flanigan had getting that black face white again.

L. H.—Well, a good time was had by all, and that's really what counts.

B. O'C.—I really believe we had the most fun in our senior year. It's true that the work was hard but we had the distinction and honor of being seniors and the lower classmen had to look up to us.

That year the Combined Student Activity Plan proved a great success. Under this plan a student became a member of the A. A., and received a year's subscription to The Torch and The Dial at a greatly reduced price.

All Hartford was momentarily at a standstill during the 1938 flood and hurricane. Most of the Bulkeley "studes" were quite disappointed by an unexpected two-day vacation which unhappily delayed their education.

A free lecture series was given, and included such speakers as Dr. Feingold, Miss Garvin, Mr. Coburn, and Mr. McElney.

Robert Cantell warbled his way to the presidency of the Boys' Glee Club and later he, Esther Berman, Aldea Brennan, Mildred Rutt, and Anna Butler played important roles in the operetta, "Bells of Beaujolais."

Such officers were elected as Henry Lundquist, Editor of The Torch; Harold Hahn, president of the Senior Dramatic Club; Bennie Vicas, president of the Boys' Biology Club; Franny Stromberg, president of the Edison Club; "Tiny" Quinn, president of the Boys' Club; Joe Morrissey, president of the Student Council; Nick Franco, president of the Honor Society; and Kay Lynch, president of the Girls' League.

The Bulkeley High Band speeded Cwikla, Guy, and "Iggy" Pipoli on to greater success on the football field.

St. Patrick's Day was celebrated by a Commercial Club dance for which Bob Flanigan dressed entirely in green from his shoes to the carnation in his button-hole.

Bill Smith and Joe Morrissey were elected Editor and Business Manager, respectively, of the Class Book, and from then until graduation never reached home from school until dinner time.

The Senior Dramatic Club gave one of its stellar performances in "The Late Christopher Bean." The cast included Leahbeth Harvey, Rita Moran, and Marshall Golden. "I'll Leave It To You" was presented as the spring production.

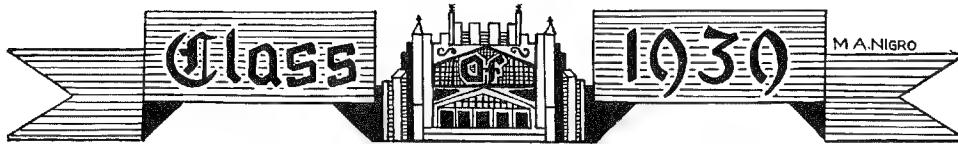

The Legislative Club members gave over WDRC a debate entitled "Democracy or Dictatorship?" and the Verse Speaking Club was ardently applauded by the convention of the New England Teachers' Association.

Again this year many trips were taken by various Clubs. The Art Club visited the Wesleyan University Laboratories; Edison Club visited the Karmel Kandy Kitchen; and the Boys' Club visited Travelers, and the State Prison, where members had the privilege of sitting in the electric chair.

Most of the Christmas cards sent to and fro about Bulkeley were made by the Art Club and the Scribblers' Club.

Among the assemblies was a speed typing exhibition by Mr. Chester Soucek; the Edison Club presented Mr. Carl Swinnerton, who in turn presented "Electrons in Motion"; "Macbeth" was later given by the Federal Theater.

In this year a dearly beloved member of our faculty passed away. We shall always hold in the highest esteem the memory of our kindly, tolerant Miss Katharine F. Kane.

A boys' basketball game and a Girls' Leaders Corps demonstration were given Sports Night. The dancing which followed was enjoyed by the audience as well as by the participants.

Jeanne Yates distinguished herself by winning first prize in an essay contest sponsored by Connecticut Economic Council. She was later elected Class Essayist.

Torch Night had a "wild and woolly" western background. Among the personalities who entertained were John Foran, Mildred Rutt, Eleanor Tamburro, Bob Munson, Robert Hamilton, and Veronica McKeon. Bulkeley High will never forget its impressions of Lundquist as the forepart of a horse.

Mary McGrail and Marion Bouchard, who had distinguished themselves all through high school by their exceptionally high marks, were chosen valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively.

L. H.—I remember the day they were announced in assembly. You could have heard a pin drop.

B. O'C.—I'll bet many of the students that day wished they could have started all over again.

L. H.—I imagine that there are many today who wish that they could make a fresh start; but the chances are that if they did have the opportunity to begin again, they wouldn't change a thing.

Finis.

CLASS PROPHECY

Scene—An Oriental tent located in India, ten years hence.

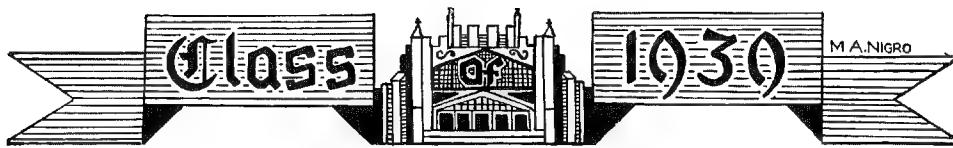

Enter tourist, to be greeted by fortune-teller.

Fortune Teller (scraping and bowing)—Salaam, mem sahib, salaam. This unworthy one is honored to have such an illustrious personage enter his humble abode. The seventh son of a seventh son will tell the past, the present, and the future. I, Abou, Ben Zene, will reveal all—for 50 rupees.

Tourist—Can you really tell me what I want to know by looking into that overgrown marble?

F. T. (Excitedly as tourist approaches crystal ball)—Please, mem sahib, it must not be desecrated by the hand of an unbeliever. I—hey! Isn't that a BHS ring you're wearing?

T.—Yes, class of 1939. But I don't understand. Where's your dialect? Who are you?

F. T.—My name's Foran, Jack Foran. Say, I remember you. You're Virginia Gentner.

T.—Jack Foran, and still prophesying! I wonder—do you think you could tell what's happened to some of the class?

F. T.—I can try. Come over here. (Looks into globe and says with mysterious air—)

I see Tom Conway as headmaster at Cambridge University, with Mitch Iwanosky as his most able professor. Another teacher comes into view. It's Rosemarie Berry teaching little savages in the wilds of Central America.

What's this? I see Elliott Allen representing the United States in an international debate over the age-old topic of women's hats.

The world-famous poet, Bob Young, is illustrating his own work and having it published by the Franco printing syndicate.

The two Grillos are promoting a goldfish-swallowing match between Irwin Dorman and Tommy Shea.

Al Stafford is trying to get ions out of solution with the aid of those famous chemists, the Resony brothers. Gert McDonough, an expert nurse, comes in often to administer headache powders.

Mike Rubino, America's leading G-Man, no longer uses a gun, but pursues his quarry with a bow and arrow, bought at Al Howard's and Bill Zaleski's sport shop.

Connie Randazzo is happily married to a rich banker. Mary Kennedy, well-known for her business ability, is now business manager for the New York Times.

Felix Sarubbi and his band are Number One on the Hit Parade, while other radio honors go to Benny Kenney, that witty radio commentator.

"Daddy Bill" Couch, aside from his engineering, conducts a Sunday morning kiddies' hour. Helen Yacavone provides sound effects for the program.

Johnny Skelly, now owner of Murray's, entertains many of the old class.

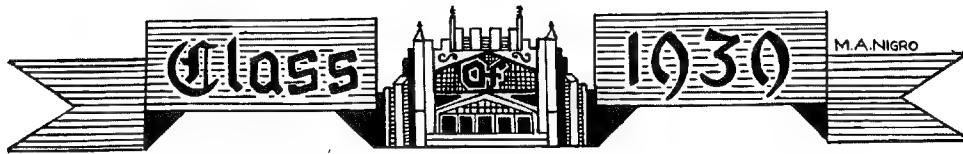

Well—Bill Smith is running a banana boat between South America and Alaska, and spending his vacations at the Shield and Postma sheep ranch in El Paso, Texas.

Clem Laroche is sponsoring the new World's Fair at Hartford, with "Chick" Maestrone as his head publicity man. The main attraction at the Fair is the colossal exhibit of bees offered by Jeanne Yates. Eileen Nolan and Frank Holda are the dancing stars in the Hall of Music.

Mary McGrail has made the headlines of all the newspapers by translating ancient Latin records, unearthed in Rome by Jack McLaughlin, who became tired of law practice.

Herman Dodge is still modeling clothes for Esquire and, wonder of wonders, "Tiny" Quinn is using his sax to influence juries when his oratory fails him.

Bob Munson's love of birds has led to a practical turn: he now has a chicken farm. June K. Lawrence, whose interest in biology began in school, is now supplying frogs' legs for Sammy Berman's chain restaurants in New York City. Grace Butler, who gained fame in Bulkeley's cafeteria, is the head dietician in these famous beaneries. Ernie Elliott, who studied mining engineering very carefully, has become expert airplane pilot. Bob Cavanaugh and Bob Flanigan have resorted to teaching backward canary birds how to sing.

F.T.—I knew I should have paid the last installment on this thing; the Ste. Marie Fortune Teller's Accessories Company has just shut the power off. What'll I do now?

T.—Well, maybe this letter from Kay Lynch, who teaches French at Frank Fanelli's private school, will help us out. I'll omit the first part. Let me see now—Oh yes! (Reads.)

Franny Rago is the producer of a very successful play on Broadway. Glamorous Rita Stedman and Phil Moreau play the leading roles. The Helm & Hawkins Company provided the elaborate scenery for the production which Eleanor Brown directed. Pye and Pye, who made a fortune in engineering, have bought the movie rights, and Howie Chudoba is in charge of the photography, while handsome Eddie Casey is being considered for the leading part. Paramount's chief electrician, Al Castonguay, will also aid in the production. Mildred Rutt, the great Juliet, is still struggling for the Academy Award.

Sapho Drakos, who is the perfect housekeeper, invited a group of friends to luncheon yesterday. Eleanor Tamburro, Betty Schiller, and Rita Moran had to leave early, for they now model at a very exclusive shop. Molly Fenton and Shirley Fox were reminiscing about their good times at Bulkeley and informed us about what is going on in the Travelers offices. Two newspapermen, Bill Strempfer, who has enlarged his Weekly Post to a nation-wide publication, and Roy Ray, editor of the Courant, dropped in. They said that Mary Begley is conducting classes on "The Value of the Home" after her course in economics at Saint Joseph College, and jovial Ray Butler, druggist, is still chauffeuring pretty girls.

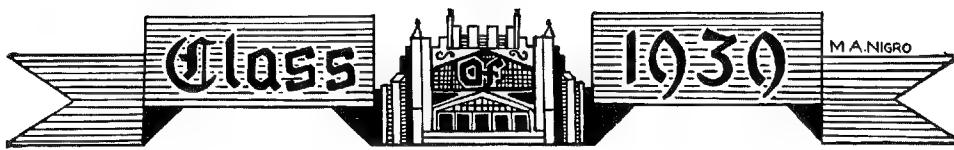

Drs. Antha Murphy, Jack Downey, and Sal Carrabba attended a medical conference in Chicago with nurse Bouchard as guest of honor. Incidentally, Betty McCarthy and Marion Brown are tap dancing in France, while Rose Peterson is in the Russian Ballet. Bob Cantell, Anna Butler, and Jean McCarthy are making their operatic debuts in Italy.

Esther Berman, that talented pianist, is now a director at the New England Conservatory of Music. Ginny Gibson and Barbara Johnson are teaching the flute there also.

Mary Sposito is teaching history, and Bob Rice is a legal professor because of his profound answers in law class. Ruth Dawson and Keron Horan have undertaken the study of Einstein's fourth dimension.

I met Leahbeth Harvey the other day, and after four years as a starving artist she is now painting pictures of Alexandria DiTunno, who is posing for Yardley's.

Prospero DePhillips has been tracing Mickey Mouse so long that he is now working for Walt Disney. Bruno Golaski is still printing his jokes. This time it's in The New Yorker.

Bob Hamilton and his Hawaiians are playing a return engagement at the Troc. Aldea Brennan is the vocalist. Incidentally, she has a dog kennel for a pastime.

Jack McGinnis is now a lieutenant in Uncle Sam's navy, while "Pug" Lundquist is captain of a tug-boat. He attended the Olympic games on leave. Bill Griffin and Joe Morrissey won the tennis matches, while Jennie Worobel walked away with the ice-skating cup. Dick Sutherland upheld the track team.

Parone has been gaining recognition as a professional football player for the New York Giants with Ben Vicas at his side. Walt Lokot is manager.

Avis Elliott has just opened a "School of Charm." She invited Ed Potz and Tom Rice of General Motors to attend a lecture, the real motive being to display their curly hair. Bess Harrison gave a talk on the care of the skin, followed by Avis Quistberg, a teacher of culture. Petite Peggy Collins, who is a hostess at a tearoom, was present. Jeannette Mathieu played the piano, while Marge Sherman and Bernice Gale, who now sing over the radio, gave solos. Betty Desmond, the school's charming secretary, acted as one of the hostesses. The hall where the talk was held was decorated by Dot Davidson.

T.—That's all that'll interest you. It was fine seeing you, but I'll have to go now. Here comes another customer, so you'd better make use of that dialect. Good-bye.

F. T.—Farewell, mem sahib. May the clouds of the future roll away and reveal much happiness

CLASS POEM

OUR LIVES BEGIN

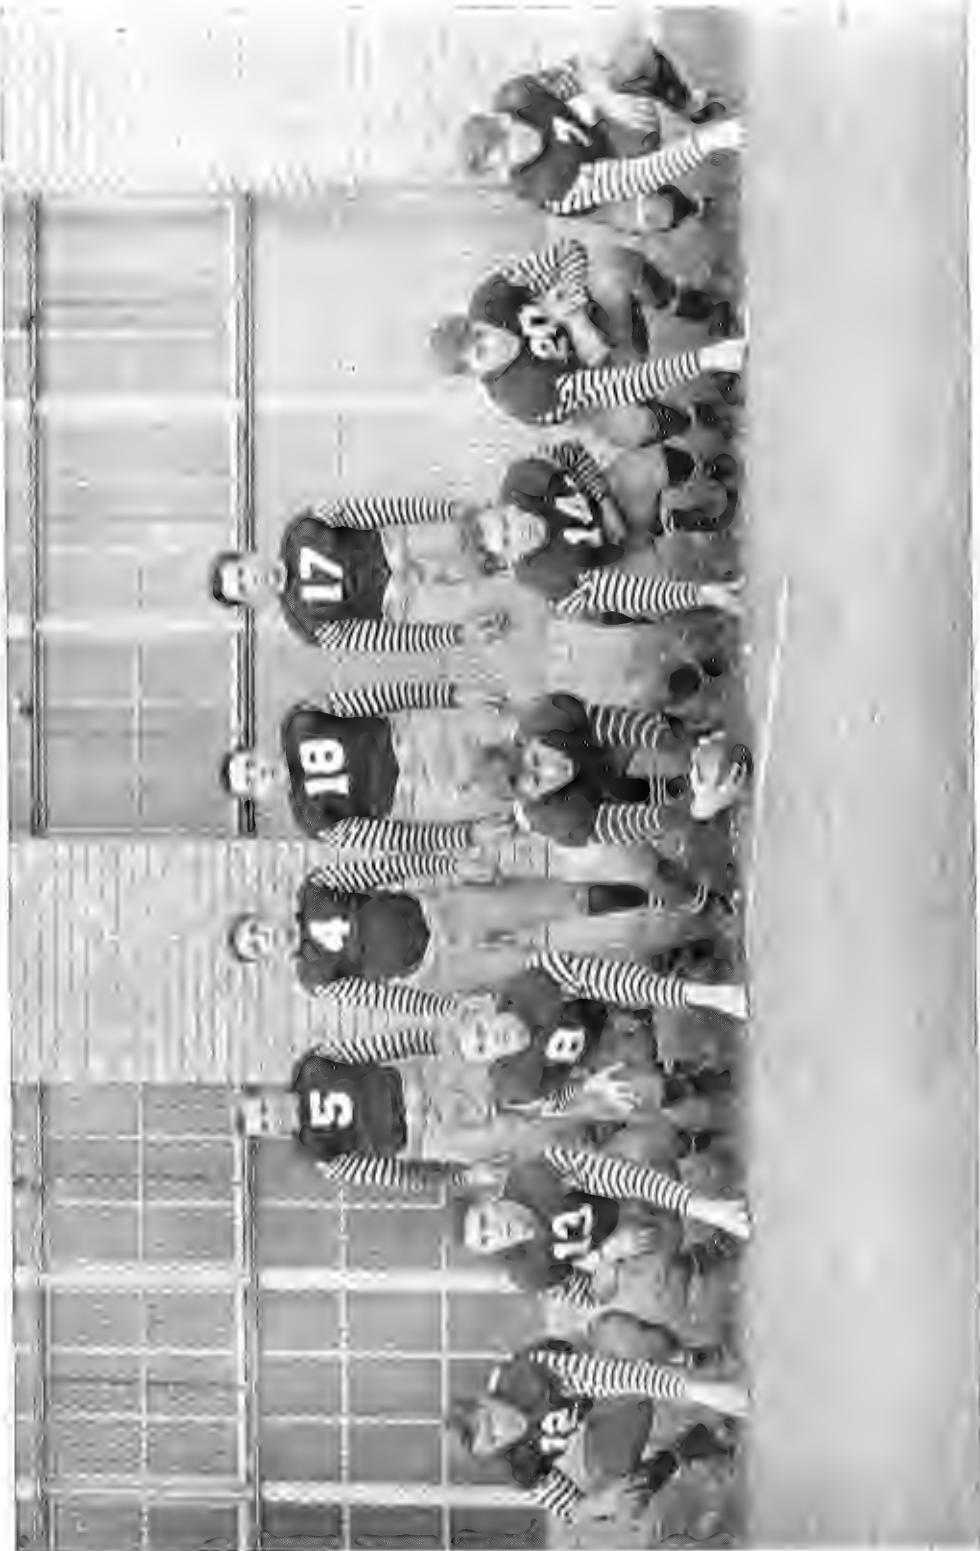

A Sonnet

Let us look back, before we face the life
Which Fate is holding in her mystic hand,
A book whose pages turn at her command.
Before we learn the fun and feel the strife,
Let us look back at what has come to pass.
We've lived our childhood, lived our school days, too,
Together in our minds and bodies grew.
Henceforth our lives begin here, from this class:
Though we must part and leave the past behind,
And travel on alone, success in view,
Each build a life and gamble, perhaps fail,
Accept what comes, nor shrink from what we find,
We'll pause, recall, as every dream comes true,
Again look back, then turn and blaze life's trail anew.

THE FOOTBALL TEAM

FOOTBALL

AS the gridiron forces of Bulkeley donned their cleated shoes, padded football pants, and leather headgear last fall and rushed into daily sessions under the supervision of "Babe" Allen, little anticipation was held by the student body for a successful season. However, as the week-ends rolled by and the Maroon and White charges continued to play a sound type of football, it was seen that early predictions were far from the true answer. When they had completed their encounters with some of the best teams, both in and out of the Nutmeg state, they had outscored their opponents and were well over the .500 mark for a final average.

In their first game, the team easily disposed of West Haven in an upset, 20-0, at the Municipal field. In a thrilling second period drive, the Allenmen scored three touchdowns and converted two points after touchdowns with Ted Cwikla and Gordie Guy, both versatile quarterbacks, sharing the honors. The following Friday saw the aggressive Bulkeley eleven tip over Worcester, 7-0, as once again Cwikla starred in the second home game of the year. The Hartford High representatives were left with the scar of defeat as the Maroon and White grid stars scored a startling win in their first city encounter, 6-0. Gallucci and Monahan did the bulk of the work for the day, with Captain Ben Vicas back in the lineup after sustaining an injury to a side muscle in the West Haven game.

It was due to happen, and the week-end's biggest upset occurred on October 29 when West Hartford downed the Bulkeley gallants for their first defeat of the year to the tune of 12-0 at the Sedgwick field. Injuries piled up in this game and sporty Gordie Guy was knocked out three times before he consented to leave the field, with his side-kick, Ted Cwikla, on the bench due to injuries received in an earlier game. Reid of Hall and Gallucci of Bulkeley both did well for their respective teams in the struggle. The team made a strong comeback in their next game, defeating Hillhouse 13-7 for their final victory of the season.

Facing Weaver in a battle that was to decide the city title, the Maroon and White forces had all sorts of bad breaks and the "green wave" scored, once on a fumble and again on an intercepted forward pass, to win, 13-7, at the Municipal field before an electrified and screaming crowd of hysterical fans. Ted Cwikla was out early in the game due to injuries, though Joe D'Ambrosio, John Cavanaugh, and Harry Parone did well in a losing cause. This was a real heartbreaker which lasted until the team went under the Red and Gold avalanche on Thanksgiving Day at New Britain, 19-0.

However, as the season of thrilling runs and spectacular passes came to an end, it was encouraging to see that our gridiron heroes had completed a good year with four opponents' scalps hanging on their belts and three losses chalked up against them. The team took second place in competition for the city title as Joe D'Ambrosio, Danny Bonadies, John Cavanaugh, Ted Cwikla, and Harry Parone were awarded berths on the All-City squad. D'Ambrosio and Cwikla repeated on the Torch All-State eleven. On such a record, we salute them and their coach.

BASEBALL

For a third consecutive year, the Bulkeley baseball forces captured the Greater Hartford City Title, this year accomplishing the feat with but one loss and five wins. Outstanding in the inter-high battle for the coveted award were Parone, who knocked out five home runs; Bob Murphy, whose home run in the final City game with Hartford High broke the deadlock of 2-2 and gave the Allenmen undisputed rights to the title; Sammy Conforto, a great pitcher and a reliable batter; and Gordie Guy, outstanding fielder and hitter.

The Allenmen ended the diamond season with a grand total of seven victories and three losses. Dropping their first game of the season to Trade, they walloped Weaver in their second start, 15-4. New Britain edged the squad out in the third game of the year, 6-5, but following that, the team had a winning streak of six games in which Hartford High, a two-time loser, Trade, Weaver, West Hartford, and New Britain were the victims. In their last game of the '39 ball season, the Bulkeley nine was defeated, 10-6, by an invading West Hartford team at Goodwin Park. During the course of the year, Edward Potz acted as manager.

The scores were as follows:

BASKETBALL

WITH a new type of basketball being introduced on the scholastic courts this year, the Bulkeley quintet, having such stalwarts as Joe Granato, Harry Parone, Bob Murphy, John Sirrianni, John Cavanaugh, Gordon Guy, and Edward Johnson back from last year, finished the 1938-1939 season with a total of five wins and seven losses. The games this past season were faster and had a stronger pace than those of past years, with the accent on plenty of snappy, clever passing on the offensive rather than the old-time dribbling. The Allenmen played "man-to-man" defense with the two forwards back, center roving, and the two guards covering about the center floor stripes unless the opponents' tactics called for it otherwise. The elimination of the center-jump proved its point this year in that the center had to be not only tall, but fast and aggressive about the backboards and on the rebound, all of which produced a far more exciting and thrilling style of play, as proved by the numerous "overtime" games.

The Maroons opened with Rockville at home and turned the down-staters inside out to the tune of 34-15. In this tilt Joe Granato and Harry Parone took the honors as Joe dropped the first hoop of the season for Bulkeley. After a few practice games, the team took the Trade School outfit into camp, 42-14, in a one-sided affair, Bob Murphy and John Cavanaugh turning in good individual scores. The most exciting home game of the year occurred when Dick Kelly, a freshman find, dropped two foul shots in an overtime period to wrench the second game in the city title race away from Weaver, 33-32. The following week saw Bulkeley suffer its first defeat at the hands of New Britain, 37-27, in the only meeting of the two teams during the chalked court season.

Hartford High, with an inexperienced squad, went down to defeat as Bulkeley piled up the points at the Hopkins gym, the final score reading 40-28. This was the Maroon's last victory in the next six games. Meriden topped our squad, 29-27, in an overtime struggle, before the most startling defeat of the year at the hands of Rockville in a second meeting, 38-35. In quick succession, Bulkeley lost to West Haven twice, 35-33, overtime, and 31-27, this last one keeping the Allenmen out of the Yale tournament. In between these two games, the team lost to Weaver in another close one, 31-29, this match being a determining factor in the race for the city title, forcing Bulkeley to be content with second honors. After this, a demoralized quintet went to pieces as Trade won their second encounter with our men, 31-17. The season ended as they once again knocked off Hartford, 35-31, in the school gym.

The Bulkeley basketball record, figuratively speaking, was a failure, but never did the team falter while in the tight spots, either winning gloriously or losing in a fighting fashion. The school spirit that predominates in all of Bulkeley's sports was brilliant throughout the entire court season, but the breaks just weren't meant to be had by our team. Thus it is that we pay tribute to a grand bunch of aggressive and colorful ball handlers, the Maroon and White quintet for the season 1938 and 1939.

The summary for the season:

TENNIS TEAM

The Tennis Team had a somewhat hard season during the past few months, with more losses than victories, but in many respects the season was successful. Such teams as Morse and Windham fell victims to the Maroon racquet wielders during the course of the season, all home games being played on the fine Goodwin Park courts.

Outstanding for the Williamsmen were Captain Phil Moreau, Manager Joe Morrissey, Joe Curley, and Bill Starkey. One really encouraging factor to the tennis coach as the year ends is the fact that next year will find him with plenty of experienced material on hand.

TRACK TEAM

The Bulkeley Track team fell slightly below the .500 mark in completing their season under the coaching of able Bob Daly. In their first meet, a far superior squad from Middletown High set back the team, $68\frac{1}{3}$ to $36\frac{2}{3}$, as a newcomer, John Pierce, did some fine work in the 100 and 220-yard runs. Meeting about the same fate in their next meet with East Hartford, the boys finally came through and stopped Torrington and New Britain in succession. Outstanding for the Bulkeley representatives in these tilts were "Tiny" Quinn, shotput and discus, Johnny Volovski, 440-yard run, and "Oats" O'Donnell, broad jump and javelin. The team wound up the cinder season, losing a tough one to Bristol by a mere fraction.

The scores were as follows:

Bulkeley.....	$36\frac{2}{3}$	Middletown	$68\frac{1}{3}$
Bulkeley.....	47	East Hartford.....	57
Bulkeley.....	65	Torrington	29
Bulkeley.....	$53\frac{1}{3}$	New Britain	$50\frac{2}{3}$

GOLF

Perhaps the best way to review the activities of the Golf Team for the past year would be to quote the words of Manager Marshall Golden: "Wait until next year!" Though the team did lose the greater number of its matches, many lower classmen obtained valuable experience from pelting the golf ball against strong opposition.

Outstanding in a losing cause were Carl Malmquist, Marshall Golden, and Leo Begley. Such stars as Klapprodt and Mandley are in the bud, so the teams coached by Mr. Quinn should have a lot to look forward to as their present season comes to an end.
